Dispute Best Practices Guide Overview

The Dispute Best Practices Guide explains the numerous aspects of transaction and dispute processing.

This guide will provide you and your staff with educational guidance as it relates to dispute processing and suggest ways for you to help prevent financial chargebacks and liability.

This guide includes:

→ An overview of authorization and transaction processing

→ An overview of retrievals and chargebacks

→ Reason code guidelines for all credit and debit networks

→ An overview of exception disputes

→ An overview of industry-specific merchant

→ Response templates

The following card networks are covered in the reason code guidelines:

Credit Networks

American Express®

Discover®

Mastercard®

Visa®

Debit Networks

Accel	Maestro
ACS* EBT	NYCE
AFFN*	PULSE
ATH*	SHAZAM
CU24*	STAR
eFunds* EBT	STAR* Signature Debit SMS
Jeanie*	Vital*
Interlink	PayPal Debit Network

*These networks do not have specific reason codes assigned to dispute; however, any retrieval that is received without a reason code will be assigned a default code of 1. Any chargeback that is received without a reason code will be assigned a default code of 53.

This guide is provided as a courtesy and is to be used for general information purposes only. This guide has been assembled from materials supplied by the networks; therefore, Fiserv is not responsible for any inaccurate or incomplete information. Furthermore, the matters contained herein are subject to change; individual circumstances may vary; and these procedures may be amended or supplemented by the networks. This document is not intended to be a complete listing of all applicable guidelines and/or procedures.* Information in this guide does not alter or amend any existing contractual obligations between Fiserv and its clients.

All chargebacks should be reviewed and presented as individual cases. Although the reason codes may be the same, supporting documentation required to remedy individual chargeback scenarios may vary. You should always refer to the relevant network rules and procedures when handling matters addressed in this manual.

Authorization Overview

Each time that one of your customers makes a purchase using a credit card or a debit card, you must obtain an authorization code.

When an authorization request is sent to Merchant Services, the merchant will receive one of the following responses:

Approved – Transaction is approved by the bank/company that governs the payment card. You will receive a 6-digit approval code so you can continue with the sale.

Declined – Transaction is not approved by the bank/company that governs the payment card. The transaction should not be completed so you should request another form of payment.

The Bank May Grant One of the Following Types of Authorizations:

Partial Authorization – A partial authorization may be granted when the customer's account is in good standing but does not have enough credit or available funds for the full amount of the purchase. When partial authorizations are received, you may process the transaction for the amount that was authorized and request another form of payment for the difference. If the transaction is processed for the full amount, a chargeback may be received for the amount that was not authorized.
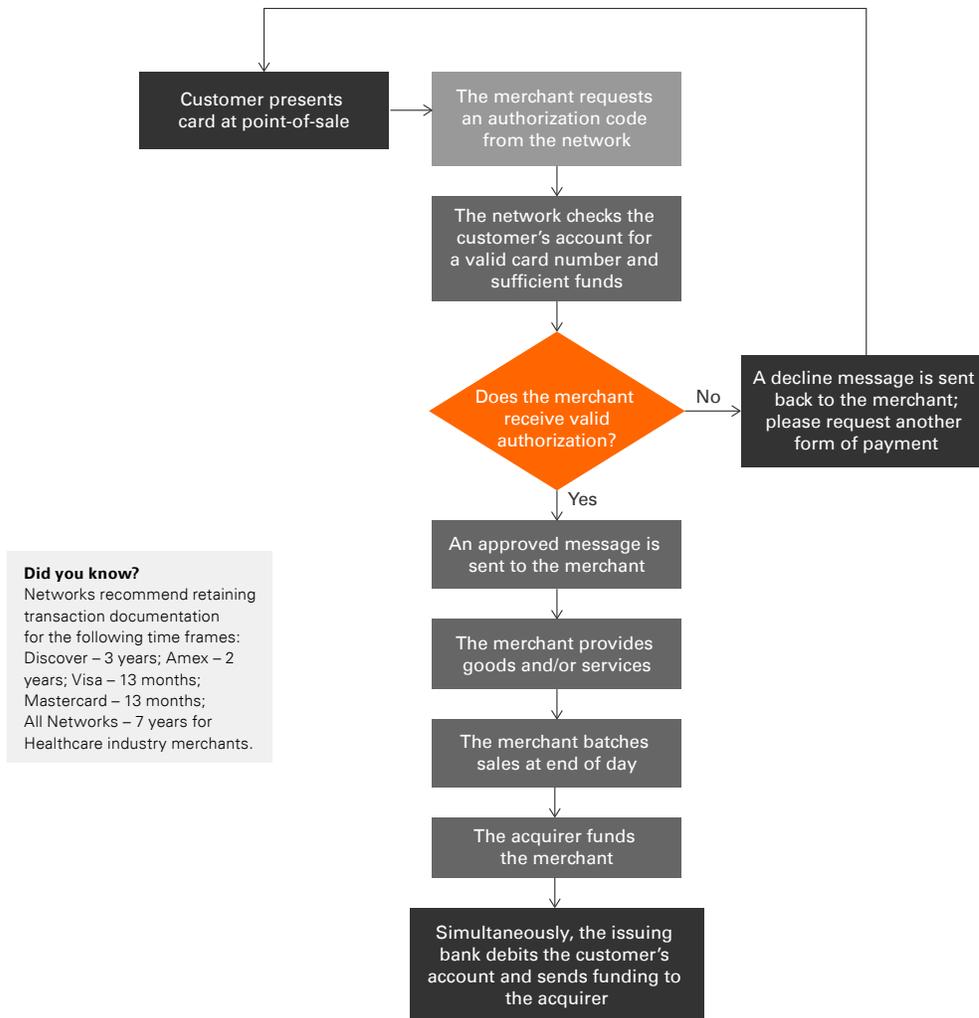

Pre-Authorization – A pre-authorization verifies if the card is valid, if the account is active and if the account has enough credit or available funds to cover the cost of the service or merchandise. The pre-authorization process will set aside funds for a specific time frame which may vary depending on the bank or company.

Did you know?
Networks recommend retaining transaction documentation for the following time frames: Discover – 3 years; Amex – 2 years; Visa – 13 months; Mastercard – 13 months; All Networks – 7 years for Healthcare industry merchants.

Obtaining Customer Signatures

The introduction of EMV* (Chip) technology has caused the signature requirement to outlive its purpose. Therefore, the networks are eliminating the requirement.
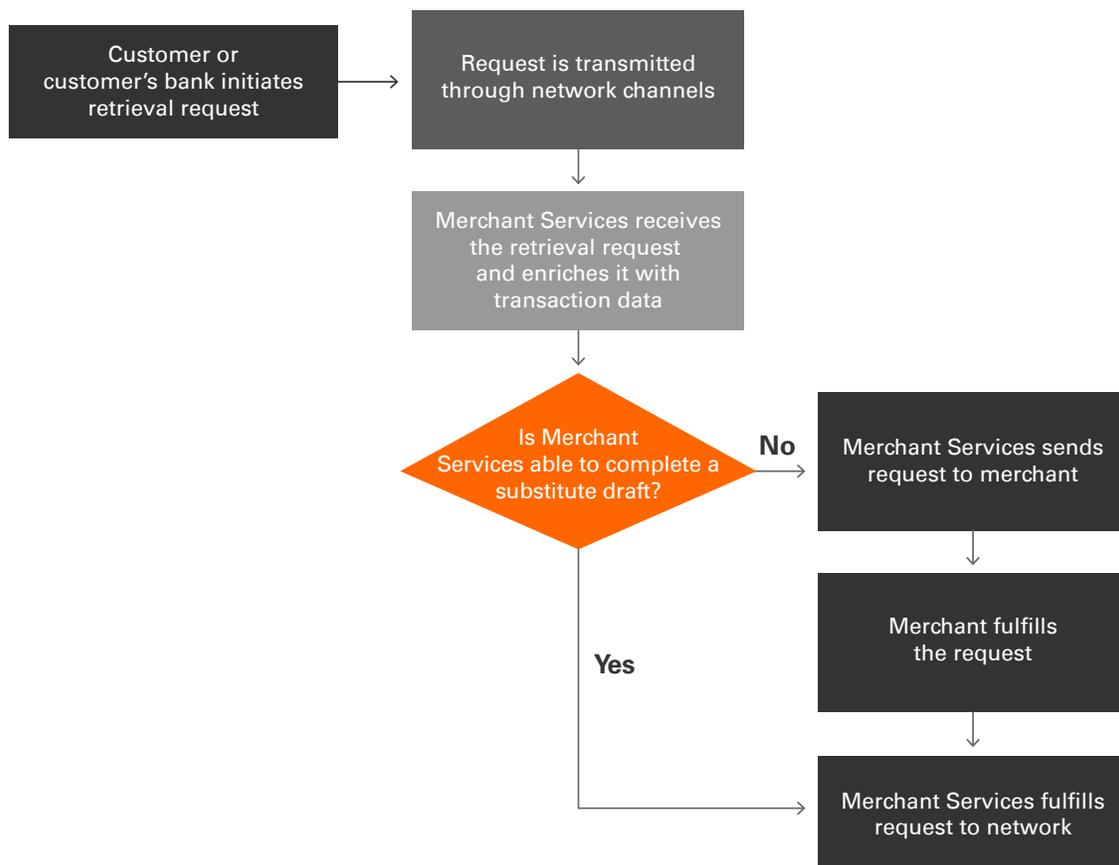

As a result of the elimination of the requirement, you may choose not to obtain a signature on electronically captured receipts for transactions at the POS, unless required by state law. You are, however, able to continue to collect signatures to ensure the customer's acceptance of terms, conditions, policies or agreement to the quality of goods or services. If you choose not to collect signatures, refund policies must still be printed on the transaction receipt to ensure customers are aware of the refund guidelines.

Retrieval Overview

A Retrieval, also referred to as an Inquiry, is a request for transaction documentation. A Retrieval received from a network does not mean that your account will be debited; however, if a Retrieval Request is not fulfilled properly, the request could result in a non-representable chargeback. Your account may be debited if you receive a non-representable chargeback.

The customer's bank submits a retrieval request to satisfy a customer's need or to support a chargeback right. Each retrieval request includes a reason code explaining why the request was initiated. The following chart lists retrieval reason codes:

Retrieval Process Flow

Fulfillment of a Retrieval Request:

→ Respond to the request for transaction documentation prior to the due date so that Merchant Services can fulfill the request in a timely manner

→ Provide clear and legible copies of all documents that support the transaction

→ Ensure that each response includes the original notification, as well as the retrieval case number

→ Ensure the case number is written on each page, if multiple pages are being provided

→ Retain confirmation that you have fulfilled the retrieval request

Chargeback Overview

A Chargeback occurs when the customer or the customer's bank challenges all or part of a purchase. An adjustment may be applied to your account.

There are various reasons that a transaction can be disputed and returned through the Chargeback process. However, the customer's bank must first confirm that a Chargeback right applies. The networks have rules outlining rights and processing requirements for the customer's bank and for you. The customer's bank is responsible for ensuring that the chargeback is submitted using the correct reason code within the predetermined time frame. The bank must provide all required documentation and meet all regulatory requirements.

When submitting a rebuttal to a chargeback, you must respond by the Chargeback due date and provide a full explanation of why you think the chargeback is invalid and the original transaction is valid. You must include all pertinent, supporting documentation. Although the chargeback may be reversed if the explanation and documentation are sufficient, reversals are conditional. The customer's bank may continue to dispute the case by processing an exception item such as a pre-arbitration.

You should not issue a credit after you have received notification of a dispute because the customer's bank may have applied a conditional credit to the customer's account. You may not be able to recover a credit after a chargeback has been received if you issue a credit in these circumstances; in fact, you may be responsible for the credit and chargeback.

This guide will provide you with strategies to avoid dispute and to defend yourself against dispute. However, the two most important points to remember for all disputes:

1. Follow all instructions provided on the chargeback notification and respond by the due date.

2. Respond to all retrieval requests within the required time frame with all appropriate transaction documentation.

Chargeback Process Flow

Customer or customer's bank initiates chargeback → Chargeback is transmitted through network channels → Merchant Services receives chargeback → Is the chargeback valid?

No → There is no financial movement to merchant / Merchant Services reverses case to customer's bank

Yes → Merchant Services notifies merchant through electronic delivery or mail (Merchant is debited upon notification)

→ Did merchant supply a rebuttal?

No → Dispute closed

Yes → Does the rebuttal remedy the chargeback?

No → Dispute closed

Yes → Merchant Services reverses case to the customer's bank (Merchant may receive conditional credit upon reversal)

Why Is the Customer Disputing the Transaction?

The merchant has processed a transaction in a CNP environment. The customer is claiming that the transaction was processed without customer permission or with a fictitious account number.

What Can You Do to Avoid a CNP Dispute?

→ Participate in a fraud protection program* for electronic commerce transactions

→ Obtain a positive AVS (Address Verification Service) response and ship merchandise to the confirmed address

→ Obtain authorizations for all transactions

→ Implement internal fraud prevention policies and procedures for suspicious activity

→ Ensure merchant descriptor matches the name of the business and is displayed correctly on the customer statement

→ Revoke any sale or exchange of goods/services when appropriate after a prior fraud dispute and implement a process to prevent recurrence by customer

→ Ensure all appropriate transaction values are being passed during settlement, including but not limited to CAVV, CVV, UCAF, AVS and Token Authentication values

How Can You Defend Yourself Against a CNP Dispute?

→ Prove that a fraud protection program* was utilized for electronic transactions

→ Prove that a credit which directly offsets the disputed charge has already been processed

→ Provide compelling evidence that the customer participated in the transaction

→ Supply a legible copy of the transaction document/information to assist customer in recognizing the transaction and include a brief description of the goods or services and a valid authorization code

→ Provide proof that merchandise was shipped to an AVS confirmed address

→ Provide a valid POD

fiserv.

→ For Visa reason code 1040, effective 4/15/23, provide evidence of at least two prior non-disputed payments for the same merchandise/services for that same cardholder account

  – Note: The following Visa requirements apply

    – The non-disputed transactions must be within 120 – 365 calendar days prior to the dispute date of disputed transaction

    – One of the following elements must be provided and must match between all three transactions:

      – Device ID

      – Device Fingerprint

      – IP Address

    – In addition to provide one of the elements above that must match between all three transactions, an additional one or more of the following must be provided and must match between all three transactions:

      – Customer Account/Login ID

      – Delivery Address

      – Device ID/Device Fingerprint

      – IP Address

*Fraud protection programs improve the security of payment transactions in the electronic commerce environment over open networks. They are designed to increase customer and merchant confidence in internet purchases, as well as to reduce dispute and fraudulent activity related to payment cards. Examples of fraud protection programs are listed below:

Visa 3D Secure

Mastercard SecureCode

Discover ProtectBuy

American Express SafeKey

Compelling Evidence Overview

Compelling evidence is supporting information used to prove a chargeback is invalid, the original transaction is valid and that the merchant followed policies and procedures when processing the transaction.

According to network regulations, compelling evidence is not a remedy for a chargeback; however, compelling evidence will be strongly considered when a customer's bank is deliberating the validity of a chargeback.

Compelling evidence is primarily used to defend claims of fraud in a CNP environment. Some networks will allow merchants to use compelling evidence to respond to customer dispute with specific reason codes.

It is important to remember that providing compelling evidence does not provide a remedy; therefore, the customer's bank may continue to dispute the case by processing an exception item such as a second chargeback or a pre-arbitration.

Note: See individual reason code guidelines for what documentation can be used for compelling evidence.

What Can I Supply As Acceptable Compelling Evidence?

Fraud – CNP

Evidence Type	What Could be Supplied
Sales draft showing customer's name that matches customer letter	Signed sales draft by customer
Evidence of one or more non-disputed payments for same merchandise or service	ARN and transaction date and at least one of the following: → IP address → Email address → Physical address → Phone number
Proof of authorized signer known by customer	Documentation that proves signer is a member of customer's household or family
Signed mail order/phone order form	Copy of original order information
Legitimate spend across multiple payment types for same merchandise	Invoice proving transaction processed for full amount across multiple payment types and other payment types not in dispute

Why Is the Customer Disputing the Transaction?

The merchant has processed a transaction in a CP environment. The customer is claiming that the transaction was not authorized.

What Can You Do to Avoid a CP Fraud Dispute?

→ Capture all transactions by chip reading the card or obtaining a magnetic swipe and when applicable, obtain a PIN

→ Implement internal fraud prevention policies and procedures for suspicious activity

How Can You Defend Yourself Against a CP Fraud Dispute?

→ Supply a sales draft with proof that the transaction was electronically captured

→ Provide evidence that the transaction was processed using a PIN-enabled terminal; however, the customer presented a non-PIN

Visa Only Merchants can challenge Reason Code 1010 – EMV Liability Shift Counterfeit Fraud and Reason Code 1030 – Other Fraud – Card Present Environment for key-entered transactions processed at non-chip terminals with the following compelling evidence: Evidence of another payment on the same card which was undisputed and/or Evidence of the customer's identification and signed copy of the receipt, contract or invoice which links the identification presented by the customer.

Why Is the Customer's Bank Disputing the Transaction?

The customer's bank is claiming that the transaction was processed without sufficient electronic authorization or account verification.

What Can You Do to Avoid an Invalid Authorization Dispute?

→ Obtain valid 6-digit authorization code for all transactions, including credits

→ Discontinue processing a transaction when a declined authorization has been received

→ Avoid splitting transaction amounts into separate, smaller amounts to obtain authorizations after a "Decline" has been received

→ Avoid processing an authorization for more than the allowed tolerance level for the applicable MCC. The following are examples of tolerance levels:

  – Restaurants are allowed a 20% variance between the authorized amount and the amount processed (All Visa Transactions and Not Mastercard Chip/PIN, Contactless, QR Transactions or transactions coded as Final Authorizations)

  – Cruise lines, lodging and vehicle rental industries are allowed a 15% variance between the authorized amount and amount processed (Visa Transactions Only)

  – Effective October 15, 2022, for Mastercard U.S. Domestic transactions processed as Card-Present and not Chip/PIN, Contactless, QR Transactions or transactions coded as Final Authorizations, the gratuity tolerance threshold is being increased to 30%. For Mastercard U.S. Domestic Card-Not-Present transactions for MCC's 5812 (Eating Places, Restaurants) and 5814 (Fast Food Restaurants), the gratuity tolerance is also increased to 30%

→ Validate card has not expired by checking the expiration date on the card presented for the transaction

→ Avoid processing a transaction past the allowable authorization time frame (the time frame depends on the type of authorization)

Visa	Mastercard	Discover	AMEX
→ CP Transactions: Same Day as Authorization Approval	→ Final Authorizations: 7 Calendar Days	→ For T&E MCCs: 30 Calendar Days	→ 7 Calendar Days
→ CNP: 7 Calendar Days	→ Pre/Undefined Authorizations: 30 Calendar Days	→ All Other MCCs: 10 Calendar Days
→ Cruise Line, Lodging, Vehicle Rental Merchants: 31 Calendar Days for Estimated Authorization Approvals

How Can You Defend Yourself Against an Invalid Authorization Dispute?

→ Provide documentation supporting that the transaction was processed using a chip terminal and that the transaction was authorized

→ Provide proof that the card had not expired on the transaction date

→ Provide proof that the charge was incurred prior to the card expiration date

→ Provide proof that a valid 6-digit authorization approval was obtained and the date of the authorization approval

Why Is the Customer Disputing the Transaction?

The customer is claiming that a credit was not issued even though the merchant issued a credit transaction receipt or provided a refund acknowledgment. Or, the customer is claiming that a credit was not issued even though the merchandise was returned or the services were canceled.

What Can You Do to Avoid a Credit-Not-Processed Dispute?

→ Disclose the refund policy for returned/canceled merchandise or services to the customer at the time of the transaction

– In a CP environment, the customer must sign the transaction receipt containing the disclosure

– In an electronic environment, provide disclosure on the website on the same page as the check-out and require the customer to "click to accept" the disclosure prior to completion of the transaction

→ Issue credit to the customer for the correct amount, in a timely manner and on the same account as the purchase

→ Ensure delivery of the merchandise or services ordered to the customer on or before expected delivery date

→ Process all transactions using the proper transaction code

How Can You Defend Yourself Against a Credit-Not-Processed Dispute?

→ Show that a credit is not due by providing proof that the disclosure was accepted by the customer at the time of the transaction

→ Provide an explanation of why the credit is not due

→ If the cardholder did not attempt to cancel the transaction, ensure your challenge response outlines this information. This will explain to the issuing bank that their customer did not attempt to cancel the payment prior to disputing the transaction

Why Is the Customer Disputing the Transaction?

The Customer is claiming that a single transaction was processed more than once to the same card number, at the same merchant location, for the same amount and on the same date; the Customer did not receive the benefit of more than one transaction.

Note: Visa's only requirement for Duplicate Processing is that a single transaction was processed more than once on the same card.

What Can You Do to Avoid a Duplicate Processing Dispute?

→ Ensure transactions are not processed multiple times

– In the event that a transaction is processed more than once in error, immediately issue a void, a transaction reversal or a credit

→ Accept only one form of payment per transaction

– In the event that two or more forms of payment are accepted for one transaction, document each form of payment on one transaction receipt confirming that the total of all payments does not exceed the total of the purchase

→ Ensure the Customer is billed only once per transaction

→ Reconcile transaction reporting daily

→ Ensure only one copy of sales draft is submitted, if you submit paper drafts for processing

How Can You Defend Yourself Against a Duplicate Processing Dispute?

→ Provide valid, legible copies of all transaction documentation which may include:

– Two distinct transaction receipts

– Two invoices

– Itemization reflecting different transactions

→ Provide evidence that the transactions were not for the same service or merchandise, if two separate transaction receipts are not available

→ Provide evidence that a credit was issued to the account to correct duplicate billing

→ Provide proof of a transaction reversal to correct duplicate billing

→ Provide documentation to support transactions were processed as chip transactions (For example, application counters are different)

Why Is the Customer Disputing the Transaction?

The Customer is claiming that the transaction in dispute was paid by another form of payment.

What Can You Do to Avoid a Paid by Other Means Dispute?

→ Accept only one form of payment per transaction

– In the event that two or more forms of payment are accepted for one transaction, document each form of payment on one transaction receipt confirming that the total of all payments does not exceed the total of the purchase

→ Ensure the Customer is billed only once per transaction

How Can You Defend Yourself Against a Paid by Other Means Dispute?

→ Provide proof that the transaction was not paid by an alternate form of payment

→ Provide evidence that a credit was issued to the account

→ Prove that the alternate form of payment was not valid

→ Provide documentation to prove that the merchant did not receive payment by other means for the same merchandise or service

→ Provide proof that there are two or more separate transactions along with an explanation of each transaction

Exception Overview

An exception occurs when the issuer and acquirer make an additional attempt to resolve a dispute outside of the initial chargeback process because the issuer maintains the transaction violated a Payment Card Network rule or regulation. If a resolution cannot be reached, issuers and acquirers will rely on the Payment Card Networks to rule on a case and to assign the liability of the dispute.

Each Payment Card Network utilizes different exception types and each type is handled differently based on the Network regulations and guidelines by Reason Code. The merchant's ability to resolve the dispute at this stage is dependent on various technical and regulation-specific factors. Should Fiserv receive an exception case from a customer's bank, all the appropriate steps will be taken to remedy that dispute. This process can be done with or without requesting additional documentation from the merchant. The outcome of the case is based on the validity of the dispute as well as the documentation that was provided to remedy the dispute. Whether the case is won or lost, the chargeback will be adjusted accordingly.

Exception Case Types

Pre-Arbitration – Incoming and Outgoing:

→ Process where the Issuer and Acquirer attempt to resolve the dispute outside of the normal chargeback cycle

→ A pre-arbitration case may follow a chargeback; however, it cannot precede a chargeback

→ By challenging an incoming Pre-Arbitration the issuer may submit a Filed Arbitration, which could come with fees in excess of $450 if ruled in favor of the issuer by the Payment Card Network

Arbitration – Incoming and Outgoing:

→ Process where the Payment Card Network determines financial liability between members for transactions that have been charged back

→ An Arbitration case may be filed without a prior Pre-Arbitration

→ If a lost ruling is received from the Payment Card Network, fees in excess of $450 could be incurred

Pre-Compliance – Incoming and Outgoing:

→ Process where the issuer and acquirer identify a rule violation has occurred and no chargeback rights exist for the merchant or client

→ Notification of these types of disputes allows the member to address the problem and attempt to settle the dispute; however, notification is not required prior to filing a compliance case

Compliance – Incoming and Outgoing:

→ Process by which the Payment Card Networks resolve disputes between members arising from violations of the operating regulations. The requesting member certifies that a financial loss has occurred or that a financial loss will occur for a specific amount and that there are no chargeback rights available

Good Faith Collections – Incoming and Outgoing:

→ A collection case is sent to the Customer's bank or acquirer on a reciprocal basis when additional information is supplied beyond chargeback time frames

→ This process is not monitored or regulated by the networks

NYCE Utilization of Reason Codes NC and R3

→ NYCE will utilize reason code NC – Non-Compliant or reason code R3 – Representment Denial as a fatal chargeback reason code when the merchant has responded to the first Chargeback, but the issuing bank is continuing to dispute the transaction

→ Representments for reason codes NC and R3 will not be permitted by NYCE

Industry-Specific Merchants

Cruise Line, Lodging and Vehicle Rental

Authorization Processing

→ Properly code the authorization as pre-authorization when applicable

→ Properly obtain incremental authorization throughout the hotel/motel stay, car rental and cruise debarkation

→ Ensure the authorization is processed within the allowable time frame

→ If the actual transaction amount is more than the total authorization, an additional authorization is required for the difference unless a variance is permitted

Transaction Processing

→ Electronically capture all transactions upon embarkation, room check-in and vehicle check-out

→ Obtain all relevant information when booking a reservation

→ In the instance of a "No Show," the merchant must hold the reservation for the allotted time, obtain authorization and process the transaction with the words "No Show" on the signature line

→ Transactions processed as a result of a loss, theft or damage are not valid and should not be completed unless explicitly agreed upon by the customer with a properly processed, separate transaction

Proper Disclosure

→ Disclose the cancellation policy to the customer at the time of the reservation

→ Ensure "Proof of Terms and Conditions Acceptance" is obtained (click to accept)

→ Utilize alternate authentication tools

Deterring Fraud

→ Supply addendum data, such as the customer's name and address, with the transaction to enable the issuer to better advise their customers on potential inquiries and to prevent unnecessary chargebacks

→ Include reservation or advanced deposit documentation: Customer's name, address, phone number, IP address (online) that can be tied to customer's letter

→ Provide a folio or registration card with a signature as well as an imprint/magnetic swipe of the credit card on the check in date

→ Electronically capture (chip-read, swipe) card upon arrival of guest(s) fiserv.

Providing Compelling Evidence

→ Provide compelling evidence that the Customer participated in the transaction and services were provided

→ Provide copy of embarkation, hotel folio or car rental agreement with Customer's signature or record of information where reservation was made

→ Provide proof of corresponding undisputed transactions

→ Provide reservation specific details such as: reservation name, name on card, card number, expiration date, billing address and phone number

Online Travel Agency (OTA) Transactions

→ Visa updated their rules to support OTA disputes – Reason code 1330 (Not as Described or Defective Merchandise/Services) has been updated to include a commercial product virtual account holder and an online travel agency with a lodging merchant that covers the expected/agreed terms of the relationship

→ Be sure the Customer is aware of yours and the OTAs terms and conditions upon reservation; the OTA should be able to provide proof the Customer agreed to both sets of terms

After Departure Charges

→ Additional charges after Check-Out (For example, smoking charges, pet charges and so on) can be billed to the Customer only if a separate transaction is processed with the Customer's authorization; otherwise, these charges can be defended only with compelling evidence and are otherwise considered not valid

→ Transactions processed as a result of a loss, theft or damage are not valid and should not be completed unless explicitly agreed upon by the Customer and documented with a properly processed separate transaction fiserv.

Airlines

Authorization Processing

→ Properly obtain authorization for the full amount of sale prior to settling the transaction

→ Ensure the authorization obtained is processed within the allowable time frame

Transaction Processing

→ Electronically capture all transactions made in a face-to-face environment

→ Utilize Fraud Protection Programs for eCommerce transactions

Proper Disclosure

→ Disclose the cancellation policy to the Customer at the time of the reservation

→ Ensure "Proof of Terms and Conditions Acceptance" is obtained (click to accept). Utilize alternate authentication tools

Deterring Fraud

→ Supplying addendum data, such as Customer name, address and ticket information, with the transaction will enable the issuer to better assist customers on potential inquiries and may prevent unnecessary chargebacks

Providing Compelling Evidence

→ Provide compelling evidence that the Customer participated in the transaction and services were provided

→ Provide copy of flight manifesto with passenger name

→ Provide proof of corresponding undisputed transactions

fiserv.
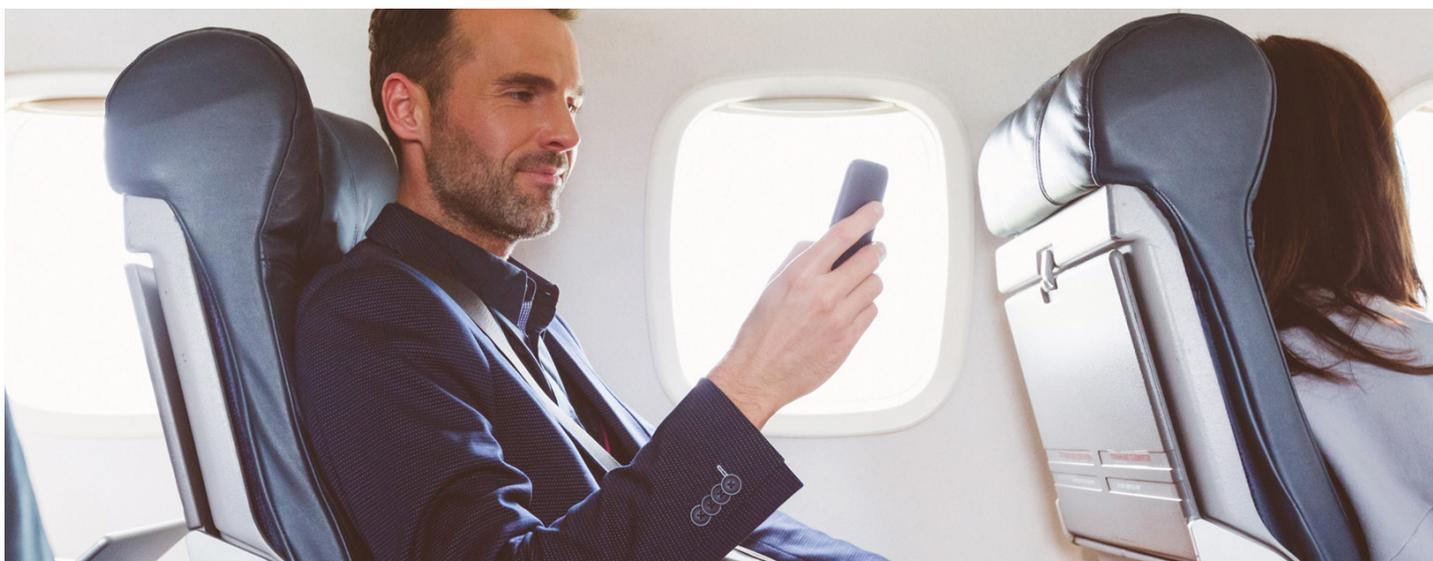

Petroleum – Automated Fuel Dispenser

Authorization Processing

→ Perform valid $1 Authorization status check prior to dispensing fuel

→ Properly obtain authorization for the full amount of sale prior to settling the transaction, if threshold is exceeded

Transaction Processing

→ Allow fuel to be dispensed up to the allowable amount by network. (See table)

→ Ensure pumps can read chip or full magnetic stripe data from the card

Deterring Fraud

→ Implement velocity parameters to recognize potential risk

→ Prompt Customer to enter ZIP code and turn pump on only when positive response received

This dispute is invalid and the Customer is not due a refund. The Customer purchased a television during our going out of business sale. This was card present/face to face transaction in our retail store and Customer took possession of the television at time of sale. The Customer returned to the store on Monday, July 6, 2020, and requested to return the television, saying it was an impulse buy following which they had remorse. However, we refused the return per our All Sales Final policy, implemented due to going out of business. The television was not returned or left at our store location, but the Customer maintains possession of the merchandise.

Assistant Manager Attestation to Events,

Following purchase of a television during our Going Out of Business Sale event on July 3, 2020, Mr. John Doe returned to our store on Monday, July 6, 2020, stating his wife was unhappy with the purchase made without her knowledge, that is was an impulse buy for which he now felt remorse.

Mr. Doe wanted to return the television for a refund, which we refused per the All Sales Final terms of the Going Out of Business Sale. Mr. Doe was unhappy and said he was not advised that the sale was final and non-refundable. We explained these terms are disclosed on the sales receipt, as well as displayed on large signage in front windows and throughout the store.

Mr. Doe left the store, threatening to leave the television sitting on the curb in front of the store. However, I watched Mr. Doe walk all the way to his vehicle, reload the television into the back of the vehicle and drive away.

Merchant Rebuttal:

This dispute is invalid and the Customer is not due a refund. The Customer purchased a Christmas in July NYC bus trip, including two nights hotel stay at Hotel 77, departing on July 10, 2020 and returning July 12, 2020; and the Customer received these services in full, as described in our brochure.

The Customer claims the hotel room had an odor and was not clean; however, the Customer stayed in the room on the first night without complaint and when they spoke with customer service the next morning, they immediately accommodated them with a replacement room of equal value.

Additionally, the Customer's bank has charged back the entire transaction when only the first night's hotel accommodations were disputed by the Customer. Regardless, we will provide evidence that Hotel 77 remedied the complaint and the Customer received their full stay with Hotel 77, as well as other services described in the Christmas in July trip package.

Please Reference the Attached Supporting Documents:

1. Brochure advertising Christmas in July NYC bus trip, July 10 – 12, 2020

2. E-signed invoice with description of purchase, including round trip bus fare on 00 TOUR BUS, two night's accommodations at Hotel 77 and $50 Gift Card to Mama Mia's Italian Restaurant; as well as 24-hour cancellation policy initialed by Customer

3. Round trip bus ticket issued in Customer's name, on 00 TOUR BUS; and copy of bus manifest for departing and return trip, showing Customer's name

4. Hotel 77 folio showing Customer check in/check out dates and including move to replacement room on July 11, 2020, following complaint

5. Statement from Hotel 77 Manager explaining what occurred and how they resolved the issue

6. Carrier Tracking as proof of delivery of bus ticket, gift card and travel itinerary to Customer's address
